Here are some simple tips to help you do better on a reading comprehension test:

Preview the Passage

Look at the title and subheadings: These show the main topic or themes.

Read the first and last paragraphs: They often explain the main ideas.

Focus on Main Ideas and Key Details

Find the main point: Look for the central message of the passage.

Notice important details: Pay attention to facts, examples, and explanations that support the main idea.

Practice Active Reading

Mark the text: Underline or write notes in the margins to highlight key ideas.

Summarize each paragraph: After reading, briefly explain the paragraph in your own words.

Understand the Structure

Know the text's structure: Identify how the text is organized (like in order of time, cause and effect, problem and solution, etc.).

Watch for transition words: Words like "however," "therefore," "for example," and "in conclusion" show when the argument or explanation changes.

Pay Attention to Context

Understand the words: If you don't know a word, try to guess its meaning from the surrounding text.

Make inferences: Try to figure out what is meant even if it's not said directly.

Manage Your Time

Don't spend too much time on one question: If you're stuck, move on and come back to it later.

Set a time limit: Give yourself a set amount of time for each passage and its questions.

Read the Questions First

Look at the questions before reading the passage: This will help you know what to focus on.

Find keywords: Look for words in the questions that you can match with the passage.

Eliminate Wrong Answers

Cross out clearly wrong answers: This will help you narrow down your choices.

Avoid tricky answers: Be careful of answers that seem partly correct but miss the main point.

Don't Overthink It

Stick to the passage: Only use information from the text, not what you know outside of it.

Be clear-minded: Focus on what the passage says directly or strongly suggests.

Practice Regularly

Take practice tests: Try doing tests in the same way as the real one to get used to the format and time limits.

Learn from mistakes: Review what you got wrong to do better next time.

By using these tips, you'll get better at understanding what you read and do well on tests.
